"O-Generator is the software which handles your musical compositions. The all-in-one combination of instruments and music making components will delight you. On this page you can easily list all the instruments by scrolling the list at the side, play them all together, or add them as layer. There are 8 default instruments: - Lead Instrument - Lead instrument is a master track, the most important track of the composition. - Bass Instrument - Bass instrument is defined by the part that is lower in the bass. - Lead Instrument Bass - Lead Instrument Bass is the bass instrument of the lead instrument, so it's usually an eighth or a quarter note in the beat. - Rhythm Instrument - This kind of instrument, which contains the instruments, is used to explain the grooves. Rhythm instruments are used to mix in the grooves, the hit and the time signature. - Drum Instrument - This kind of instrument provides the beat. The main function of the drum instruments is to define the groove, and to provide the bass. - Harmonic Instrument - Harmonic instrument is the partner of the lead instrument, which you can tune to the lead instrument. The harmony can be a melody, a chord or a scale. - Rhythmic Instrument - This kind of instrument is a percussion instrument. - Chord Instrument - This kind of instrument provides you with chords in addition to the bass, melody and harmony. After the recordings of the sounds you can turn to the back-end. In that back-end you can easily manage your audio recordings. The top panel contains numerous slide rules and knobs. Use these tools to control the panning of the instruments, the volume and much more. The tools can be customised. There are various interface widgets and piano roll. On the interface you can tune the string instruments and the chord instruments. The piano roll lets you scale in and out the instruments as well as invert the notes."
