1. 1. Click the Photoshop Toolbox in the top panel of the window. Expand the Toolbox and place the Eraser tool at the bottom of the panel. In the Tool Options area, click the Bevel and Emboss drop-down list, select Solid, and set the Diameter to 6.8 (see Figure 3-3). Click OK to accept these settings. Figure 3-3 Using the Eraser tool in the Eraser Options dialog box to create bevels and embosses. 2. 2. Double-click the Eraser tool in the Tool Options area to open the Eraser Options dialog box (see Figure 3-4). Enter the following values in the dialog box: * Selection Opacity: 50% * Size: 15 px * Thinning: 5 px * Density: 36% * Scaling: 50% * Color: Black * Shadow: 8 px * Size: 25 px Figure 3-4 Use the Eraser tool in the Eraser Options dialog box to create bevels and embosses. 3. 3. Click the Eraser Tool icon in the Tool Options area to select the Eraser tool. Click the Layers panel and expand the Channels thumbnail at the bottom of the panel. In the Channels palette, select the Background layer and click the Eraser tool to create a transparent bevel in the layer. The result appears in the foreground of the image (see Figure 3-5). Save the document. Figure 3-5 Using a layer's bevel settings to create a transparent bevel on the background layer.

A professional photo editor uses Photoshop to manipulate the color, contrast, brightness, and various other settings of an image. They generally also use a number of other post-processing tools such as filters, text tools, and much more. Photo editing applications are sometimes called photo retouching tools. They are often used for retouching and enhancing images, correcting problems, and more. Adobe Photoshop comes with a large number of features for photo editing, including photo retouching tools. Photo editing software is a very powerful tool for users, and they are a convenient way to make small or large changes in a picture. This guide will help you learn how to use Adobe Photoshop and give you tips and tricks on how to use this professional photo editing application. Images, which are the primary content of every page of the Internet, cannot always be trusted. They can be easily, or even unintentionally, altered and their original content lost. Therefore, to protect your digital photos, especially the images you publish, you may want to edit the images in Photoshop or one of other photo editing software. Unlike some other photo editing software, Photoshop allows you to easily edit the color and contrast of your images, and to enhance and restore them. And, in some cases, you can do some advanced photo retouching such as cloning and removal of things, including people, from the image. Also, unlike some other photo editing programs, it is possible to edit an image in Photoshop and later export it back to another application such as Microsoft Word for further editing. Learn about the tools in Photoshop Photo Editing. Image Size When you open the photo editor, the display of the image usually appears. Let's take a look at how to open a photo file in Photoshop. Image Size is the size of an image. We can change the display size of the file in the editor window. File > Image Size or Cmd + I. Select the file that you want to process and choose the setting. The image size has various settings that can be made. To make the image smaller, or to make it fit on the screen, we can make it into a smaller size. There are four image sizes, Large, Medium, Small, and Extra Small. Best Camera When you open an image, it appears in the editor window on the right side. If you want

Q: Please vote once each to help users gain reputation Right now we have a reputation system which can easily be abused. For example, a user can have a huge number of upvotes/downvotes (without being a moderator). Let's imagine a user who has ~1000 upvotes. This number will obviously decrease once a user have reached 2000 reputation (or whatever minimum reputation required to vote). In our current system, if this user has spent an hour on the site, he can just wait until he gets enough reputation to upvote everyone around. I think that we should add a rule which if a user has 250 reputation, he can't downvote. if a user has 3000 reputation, he can't downvote. if a user has 10k reputation, he can't upvote. This will give all new users a competitive advantage. A: Your suggestion is inspired by the start of the system. When reputations were set to 500, you had to click for every vote. I doubt you'll reach a situation where it's impossible to vote as few users reach reputation 10k. Let's look at the different scenarios: if a user has 250 reputation, he can't downvote It's fine, they don't want to downvote if a user has 3000 reputation, he can't downvote This is not enforced, if he wants to, he can downvote until his reputation reaches 3000. There might be situations where he downvotes quickly. if a user has 10k reputation, he can't upvote I don't see the problem. He can upvote if he wants to, the main issue with it is there is a delay. On a different note, I don't think reputation is a good system. It shows what actions a user has done, not his competence. I'd even go further and say that it's misleading. Your reputation shows what actions you've done. As you can see, I haven't done as much as you have and yet my reputation is higher. I think we should change to a system of badges (which is the answer based reputation). The idea is simple, everyone start at 0, get their first badge (it's a bronze badge, I don't know the name of it right now, I'll edit this if I find it) and after they get 2 badges, they get another one. The badges are supposed to reflect

Pages Tuesday, May 6, 2011 Cover Reveal: Love Lessons From A War Hero by Jillian Hervey Love Lessons From A War Hero – Jillian Hervey, Book I in the Love Lessons series Jillian lives in Australia and can often be found soaking up the sun and relaxing under a shady tree. She loves traveling, spending time with her friends and reading. She has a rich imagination and spends her free time creating her own fictional world. She also loves a good challenge and enjoys solving Rubik's Cube puzzles with her friends. A Chance Meeting – Who will I marry? I'm in the middle of juggling a life full of challenges with my role at the homeless shelter, work and looking after my family. It's not getting any easier. Everything is fine until I meet a beautiful single mother with an adorable baby son, and suddenly my life is turned upside down. Jaden Todd is the son of a wealthy couple from California that have just moved to the sunny city of Sydney. Jaden is very close to his mother who he runs to every time she's upset about something, but he's best friends with his mother's boyfriend, Austin. Jaden is described as having a 'golden', 'halo' smile and is the opposite of shy and awkward. Everything changes when I do a one-day community service project at the shelter one night and come across Jaden. Not only is Jaden gorgeous and great fun to be around, he's also super sweet and adorable. I don't know how I can go back to being the same boring, good-natured, happy-go-lucky dork I was before I met him. Jaden is just the kind of guy I need to distract me from my life problems and live happily ever after and if I'm really lucky, fall madly and deeply in love. I'm half hoping my chance meeting with him and being involved with the shelter will turn out to be a one-night stand. Unfortunately, after our first encounter, my grandmother forces me to introduce him to my parents. Little do I know my parents don't think much of my chances of finding someone. They think I'm giving up my best chance of finding a husband. Jaden has been gone for three years and while my mother isn't
