The Elden Ring Game is a fantasy action RPG developed by Plan B Co., Ltd. and launched in Japan on August 25, 2017. A joint development project between Arc System Works and Arc System Works Planning, it has been directed by Tomohiro Suzuki and Yuya Hirose, creators of the Touhou Project, and its character designs have been done by Yuuki Hayashi, the artist of the Touhou Project. The project has been supported by the Japanese government's "Funding Support Project for Creation of Cultural Contents" and "Grant-in-Aid for Scientific Research". Plan B's "Elden Ring Game" is a fantasy action RPG which is released in Aug 2017. In the game you'll be in the role of a powerful person in the Lands Between, a world that is separated from our world by a sea of fog. The Lands Between is where "Elden" or "Ascended Souls" can live in light. In that world, there's an organization called "The Elden Ring", or "ARPG" if you want to be more formal. They take the mission to control the world and are trying to increase the power of "The Elden Ring" by exterminating the "Elden". Just like the hero of Touhou Project, Touya Sakazaki, the player will start life as a common person. But fate demands that the player becomes a part of this organization, and you will fight monsters and fight alongside others. If you succeed, you'll be given the title of "Elden Lord" and could get all sorts of powers. As you progress in battle, you'll find out that the world is not as simple as you thought it was. If you're just looking at the story, you'll probably think that the world is just a "lush fantasy world". But in reality, the world is as simple as a bakery. The settings are set in a bakery which is separated from the real world through a thin sea of fog. People who are born in this world and in our world always think that they are the only ones. The whole world is divided into two parts. In the first part, you'll be fighting monsters and getting your training. If you're

The ListView is part of a Composite Control Library that handles its own data binding. I have found that when I click on an item that was previously clicked, the current item is deselected and the previously clicked item is selected. If I bind to the ListView.SelectedItem property, how do I reset it back to the clicked item so that the selected item is the clicked item? Note: I don't necessarily have to have the listview to select an item. It just would be nice to do it that way. Any help would be appreciated. A: One simple way would be to create a property for the selected item in the ViewModel of your CompositeControl, and then bind it to the SelectedItem property of the ListView.
