Q: Capturing and configuring network settings on a LAMP installation I am running Ubuntu 18.04 server LAMP installation as a VM on top of a Mac OS X VM. The Mac and Ubuntu instances are connected to the same virtual network so I can readily get them on the same subnet. I have also successfully done this on a Mac laptop with Ubuntu 16.04. However, I'd like to find the same solution for Ubuntu 18.04. The problem is I have no idea how to get access to the network interfaces on this VM. OpenVZ container Ubuntu VM Setup details The Mac VM is configured as a NAT VM. The Linux VM is set up as a host only. It cannot share its network interfaces with the Mac VM. When I try to create a route for it, I get the error: iptables route add default postrouting table -I PREROUTING -i br0 -j ACCEPT iptables route add default postrouting table -I POSTROUTING -o br0 -j ACCEPT Both the Mac and Linux VMs have the same IP addresses. When I SSH into the Linux VM, I can see the virtual network interface (br0). However, that interface is associated with the Mac VM and I cannot configure it to send/receive traffic. Please help me.
