Q: Where is my Scala Application running? I'm new to Scala and I can't seem to find where my application is running. When I run `scala myApp.jar` I only see the console/terminal, but no Hello World application. I'd like to see some output, but don't want the console running at the same time. I've also googled this but any clear answer hasn't come up. I'd like it to be running headless, but am beginning to think I'm missing something silly. Edit: I've run `java -jar myApp.jar` in the terminal and got Exception in thread "main"
