More numbers for technical market forecasts, corporate financial forecasts and business development The report Money Shot presents the results of the latest edition of our report series. The aim of the report is to tell you about the state of the art in the economics of innovation by means of using mathematical models and proven economic theories. We have not found the right words to tell you about the new insights in our fields of expertise. The report is compiled by Julien Lahoud, an economist at the IASA and Sam Morgan, an economist at the University of Sussex. The Economic Modelling group at the Institute of the German Economy (IZA) is the coordination center for all of the statistics that are provided within the report. Money Shot is published three times per year. The first edition was published in April 2016, the second edition was published in July 2016, and the third edition is the current one, published in October 2016. If you want to get a quick overview about the state of the art within each field of innovation, then you should start with the money shot report. The Presidential Campaign: Things Are Getting Nasty in US - jal278 ===== julius_geezer Good lord, it would be nice if people would stop putting their politics into a partisan red/blue dump of sound and fury. We're in the middle of a campaign to do what Congress hasn't done--reduce spending and interest. Unless _we_ are going to do it, _our_ business will not be reduced or at all endangered. I think I'll go back to seeing to the important business of my daily life. ----- jal278 Stuff like this is why the

I think my boss suggested that maybe. sigh On the subject of the secret files, I've read about this for the first time while reading her post on secret files... I'm gonna come back to this later, but I just figured: Doesn't it seem a bit strange that if the creator(s) of a series weren't so keen on others drawing the characters, they'd keep a file on the characters to see what others were doing with them? Oh well, at least I know now that you guys don't like that particular Lost fanart. I knew this was coming! Really, I knew it! I was gonna talk about that! I did! Heh... blush I love how this series has the ability to re-wake my interest in the show in the most unlikely of places. Or, you know, doesn't! I don't know. Maybe that's a better way to put it. Or perhaps it means that I'm so infatuated with this show that I'd do anything to see it succeed. But that really depends on what those things are, I suppose. C'mon, where's the creativity? I know there must be one! Someone please give me the ability to depict complex and mysterious scenes!! I want to depict the emotions and feelings in the heart of the creator as well! I know there's something special about this series and, like everyone else, I want to see it develop into something special. The saga continues! Sierra, as depicted by me. I know some of you think I'm a bit obsessed, but hey... I get to meet the characters I'm obsessed with... So 0cc13bf012
