When I go into the rails console, I get this error: undefined local variable or method `new_development?' for # I've checked the config and the config/development.rb file and I cannot spot where I'm calling the new_development method. Could you help? A: You have to make a rails new in a different directory. Also I would recommend creating a new directory under development/ for new rails apps. [Relationship between food intake and antimicrobial susceptibility patterns in foodborne pathogens]. Antimicrobial resistance in foodborne pathogens is a relevant public health problem. Foodborne pathogens can be affected by variations in food consumption, so that nutritional status could play an important role on their antimicrobial resistance patterns. This study aimed to assess the relationship between variations in food intake and antimicrobial susceptibility patterns in isolates from foodborne infections. A total of 1,240 foodborne disease outbreaks and 213 food isolates collected in Chile between 2004 and 2012 were analysed. Food consumption was estimated based on the daily consumption of the food vehicles of the outbreaks. Consumption rates per 100 person-years were calculated by rates for each day of the week, age group and sex. The food isolates were submitted to antimicrobial susceptibility testing according to the National Laboratory Standard. Data on the antimicrobial consumption rates and the antimicrobial susceptibility patterns were described and analysed by rates of consumption and general patterns of susceptibility. 5.08%
