Vaastav full movie watch it.As a Pennsylvania woman, I was appalled that the Republican National Committee would declare that voters who send an "early" mail-in ballot are doing so because they are "sick of waiting" on voter ID, which is probably true. But that wasn't the headline from the Washington Post that I read Sunday. What I read was that the RNC was going to make a "We Have a Ballot" ad featuring two people -- one of whom (the narrator) was waiting to vote in person because she lacks a driver's license. There's a major error in the RNC's logic. You see, when a person needs to use a driver's license to vote, it doesn't matter if they have or don't have a voter ID. I'm not saying that that person is actually an illegal immigrant. (At least not in Pennsylvania.) But having a driver's license doesn't make a person exempt from voter ID laws. It doesn't make them a "natural-born citizen" or "citizen of the United States," either. Those are the requirements for registering to vote. They are not excuses for not obtaining a photo ID. Not every state can require photo ID. But every state requires that someone have a valid driver's license, non-driver's identification card or an ID card issued by an Indian tribe to register. Incidentally, while it is true that Pennsylvania requires only non-driver's identification for in-person registration, it is incorrect to say that Pennsylvania doesn't have a photo ID 6d1f23a050
