Known issues: - No MASS MOBILE SDK but of course it is free so great job! - iOS version of the app is a little buggy on my iphone, the menu looks a little weird when you swipe through the list but other than that all is good :) - Using london as the folder you select the "london" icon and it seems to work - Activating the alarm via the app is easy, add a contact and it will ring (you need to add multiple contacts for it to work) and you can also select the sound - The images on the camera roll don't show up when you swipe left to move through your camera roll but if you select the camera roll the camera and edit icons show up in the app so you can select the image. There's even a built-in calculator which pops up for any value you put in the Edit field. The crowning touch of the camera is its high-quality 8-megapixel array, with every pixel capable of capturing ample detail. iTunes now runs on. Good thing that Apple made iTunes to run on Windows 7, windows 8 or Windows 10 too. You can try cleaning the iTunes cache to force it to start over. Try quitting the iTunes that you are running and then starting iTunes again to make sure it doesn't somehow open. Save any files or make changes to your iTunes before you do this. You should be able to solve the problem yourself by opening iTunes, navigating to Edit/Preferences/Advanced and unchecking the box for Revert to iTunes 10. I have tried to open it several times since the upgrade, and it has been working fine for me. Since I'm running Windows 7, I just launch the program from the Downloads folder. Try upgrading to iTunes 12.9.1 if it still doesn't work. You can also try downloading a different copy of iTunes. Unmount and reboot your device. Try restarting your computer. Have you checked if iTunes is running on your PC (Windows or Mac)?. I've got almost 12k 4k video tracks in my 4th gen iPod To solve the problem I had to disable access to AudioVisual Objects and add in some permission under Service Settings for Personal Data. Is iTunes running when you try and sync your device? I'm on Windows 10 and when I opened the app I got an error message that said 'Invalid Allocation of Memory' and then the
