if by chance, you just entered your e-mail address in a particularly un-savvy place, just press ctrl + f5 or click this link <http://tinyurl.com/cheap-dieselpumps> if you are using a non-apple os, you can press ctrl + r to refresh your browser. this page tries to create a single, simple story for you to learn about the game. it doesn't go into detail about e-mailing your professor or the "lucky egg" event, or teach you all the secrets of the game. this is my first story, and i plan to write more of them. all of these stories will have links to a guide that contains all the secret info you need to play, and most of the necessary steps to beat the game, and then i'll create a walkthrough in one of the guides. it also offers a fair amount of replay value. having trouble against a single specific trainer? keep your "mewtwo" in your pocket for battle after battle and eventually you'll be able to defeat him. once you learn the right maneuvers for battling in this version, it's a lot of fun. you can get a lot of badges before you have to throw your pocket away. if you plan to play this in the long-run, you should come back to this very page regularly.

i'll add in new things periodically. the best resource in this game is finding new friends, trading pokémon, and battling in gyms to take down more badges. your friends and the new staff at the national dex will provide a wealth of knowledge about this game. step 2: look over the e-mail messages you have at the moment. the ones you get in-game seem to be "random", but when you open up the game's e-mail window, you'll notice that you still have a bunch of e-mails on the server. some of these may be spam, but you can always ignore those.
