on july 18th, the new york yankees clinched the al east with a 4-0 victory over the toronto blue jays. all of the al east teams claimed at least one-half division title before the season started. the detroit tigers and baltimore orioles were in the same boat with 3 games and 2 games respectively. the red sox and rays finished tied in the wild card with 84 losses while the yankees were merely 77-85 as they clinched the division and home field advantage in the playoffs by beating the jays. the sox were out-scored 418 to 404 in the first three months of the season, while the yankees out-scored their opponents 891 to 819 in that span. this was far above average: the yankees never lost more than 1.0 game per week while the red sox lost about 2.0 per week. the sox finished the first three months of the season 15-6, the yankees finished at 41-22. the red sox were a league-high 16 games over .500 at 11-6 and remain on pace to finish at 93-69, which would be tied with the phillies for the best record in baseball. about the difficulties: much like ea's madden, the game is divided into solo and regular/hardcore multiplayer, and you can switch between them at any time. there are online rankings that are based on both your players and your coaching staff, as well as a leaderboard where you can compare yourself against your friends and the world. there's also a play-by-play option, which allows you to watch every single play of any game that you've managed to win or lose, and the easiest way to go nuts with a strategy is by using the play designer, which lets you make custom tweaks to make an already scripted play your own.
