
Medieval Kingdoms 1212 Ad Campaign !!HOT!!

warman: our first mod was based on feedback from the community. we have some ideas for the next mod, which is focused on the middle ages and has the intention of improving the campaign and campaign map in total war. were looking forward to hearing more feedback and comments from the community. were eager to implement the ideas of the community into the next mod. were really excited to see what we can do. i've often noticed that the modders will give up on modding when the game is released. the only way to change a system is to start from scratch. but when you're dealing with a massive strategy game like total war: warhammer or total war: warhammer ii, it can be easier to give up and not even bother. this is probably one of the most frustrating things that have happened in the modding scene. it's not that the developers have been malicious or inconsiderate. the change was made to try and make the modding experience better, but it doesn't have the desired effect. i'd love to see a return to the old system, but with some changes. with that in mind, i'd like to give the developers of medieval kingdoms 1212 ad a little bit of a hand. the 12/12 campaign was a fantastic piece of work and we are so happy to have helped people keep playing their game. and it just goes to show the importance of being able to find a mod that will help extend a game's life for a few extra years. making mods for total war: medieval ii is always rewarding. i think it's good to always stay on the cutting edge, but sometimes that is not really possible. that's what makes modding so great in general. it's fun to take the game and make it yours.

Medieval Kingdoms 1212 Ad Campaign

the campaign starts in 1172 a.d. with the infamous battle of lewes. the campaign can be set to follow either the english or the french, which start with differing armies. players will also be able to set the difficulty level. this mod also includes a series of optional campaigns such as the great crusade. it also includes several new features such as the independent city-states, the new papal election system, and an expanded dialogue system. focuses on the great war of the ring that encompasses all factions from across middle-earth, including mordor, which is not a playable faction. the campaign has a dynamic campaign map that can be seamlessly saved between game sessions. there are also 20 new units and dozens of new buildings. the crusader king mode replaces the holy land with the latin kingdoms. it is also the perfect alternative to the medieval kingdoms 1212 campaign for players who find the campaign to be a bit too long. in crusader king, you are given a free reign to do whatever you want, but watch out for the eye of the khazar empire. if it is not careful, you will be forced to leave the latin kingdoms for good. the last scenario, the fall of the khazar empire, introduces us to a new faction: the khazar empire. in this scenario, you play as the khazar empire. the khazar empire is a trading empire that is spread across the eastern mediterranean. it is ruled by a khazar khan and has an eclectic mix of subjects and religions. in this scenario you can take over the holy roman empire and become the greatest empire in europe. this scenario is a mod by the same author as the other campaigns, i.e. warman. 5ec8ef588b
